THE ARTIST

I started making mosaics by chance. Many years ago I found a book in a bookstore, which is called “Mosaics on a Weekend” by Martin Cheek and it was love at first sight. I don’t have any artistic training but have always liked to art and working with my hands. I took a course and then became a member of SAMA (Society of American Mosaic Artists) and thus began a career in mosaics. Mosaics have definitely made my life richer, not only because of the fact that I finally found an activity I absolutely love, but because through them I have met some of my best friends.

THE SPONSOR

Ours is a small family-run winegrowing concern. Our vineyards drape the hills of Prepotto, one of the most renowned grape-growing areas of the Colli Orientali del Friuli, where viticulture has an age-old history. The work in the vineyard, the attention to every screw, every bunch, love and passion and the greatest respect for the environment are the basis of our philosophy. The new farm consists of a modern wine cellar and an old farmhouse in which are placed the oak barrel and a new tasting room. We make our wines with love and respect for the most ancient traditions.

THE MASTERPIECE

Life is a perfect circle. The beginning and the end are undefined; birth and death are part of an eternal cycle, of a perpetual transformation.

Thus, whatever is relevant and flavors life falls into this circle: women and men and their doings, their joys and sufferings and everything that surrounds us.

Sometimes its permanence is longer and it seems the circle becomes bigger like in nature: the earth, mountains and rivers. Other times the circle seems smaller because life is ephemeral, like our own. In the middle of the circle is the earth, which is our origin and to which all returns. It is crossed by veins that bring it to life, and as the most precious matter in our existence, they are made of gold. They are the water, our vital essence, our longings. They are the source and become our path in our lives: our homeland, our family, our loves, our work.

Everything will eventually return to the earth again, fading into infinite time.
